ABOUT YOU

Everyone is different and there is no right or wrong way to be. These paragraphs describe how you likely show up in your natural style.

Scott can be a real "stickler" for quality systems and orderly procedures. Safety and security are important to him. Scott prefers to work in an environment that is both economically and physically sound. He wants to know the company rules so he can follow them, and he may become upset when others continually break the rules. His motto for work may well be the coined phrase, "quality is job number one." Getting the project or job done right is important to him. If forced to choose between producing quality work or quantities of work, quality will be the winner. When Scott sees something that is wrong, he wants to fix it. He is oriented toward achieving practical results. He is adaptable. He can be characterized by his creativity and attention to quality and detail. Because of high expectations for his own job performance, Scott may sometimes feel that other workers cannot perform up to his standards. Scott can overanalyze a problem which tends to slow down the decision-making process. He wants the safety features on his equipment to be in good working order.

Scott takes pride in his competence or his ability to understand all the facts of a situation. He is good at concentrating on data while looking for the best method for solving the problem. He has an acute awareness of social, economic and political implications of his decisions. He uses data and facts to support the big decisions, because it makes him feel more confident that his decisions are correct. He is the type of person who will accept challenges and accept them seriously. Scott tends to make his decisions after deliberation and gives weight to all the pros and cons. He follows company policy, if aware of it. He can be seen as a thinker whose intuitive talents can bring divergent ideas to the forefront. He sees himself as factual and "down-to-earth." He is more than casually interested in "theory." When confronted with a problem, he will look for a method, a formula, a procedure, or a system to solve it.

Scott's work represents his true self, and he will take issue when people attack the quality of his work. He wants to establish good will with others and to influence them in a friendly and sociable manner. He is usually soft-spoken, but his demeanor may be deceptive to those who work with him. He may possess strong and unwavering convictions that are not always apparent to others. He does not like to work for a manager who uses a confrontational management style. He tends to withdraw and not express himself and may become unproductive if he feels threatened. Scott enjoys analyzing the motives of others. This allows him to develop his intuitive skills. He likes to know what is expected of him in a working relationship; they also like to know what the duties and responsibilities are for others who will be involved. Communication is accomplished best by well-defined avenues. He likes to ask questions to clarify the communications. He gathers data in order to be certain he is correct in his work, communications or decision making. He does not seek confrontation; but if he is confronted, he will present his case with enough supportive data that he will probably win.

YOUR NATURAL AND ADAPTED BEHAVIORAL STYLES

Adapted Style

Natural Style

The graphs represent your behavioral styles based on the DISC model.

There is no "correct" score. Your personal style is a unique blend of D, I, S, and C.

*D stands for dominance.
I stands for influencing.
S stands for steadiness.

A score over 50 indicates that you are "High" in that behavior. A score under 50, indicates "Low". Scores close to the middle indicate a more adaptable style in this category.

The graph on the right represents your natural style and the graph on the left represents how you feel like you have to "adapt" your behavior based on current circumstances.

D, the red bar on the graphs, stands for Dominance. High D's tend to be direct, forceful, results oriented, and bold. Low D's tend to be non-confrontational, low key, cooperative, and agreeable.

DISC REFERENCE GUIDE

Find your DISC Graph on the Indigo summary page: Take note of scores furthest away from 50 on the DISC graph (high or low). These are the behaviors that will stand out most for you. Reference "stand-out" scores below. Various combinations of stand-out DISC factors will influence communication styles and environmental needs. For example, a High D, Low C will need a fast-paced, results-oriented environment with lots of freedom. However, a High D, High C will need an environment where results can be achieved through structure, quality, and attention to detail. If all scores are near the middle, you are likely adaptable to many environments.

LIKELY TIME WASTERS

This section is designed to identify potential distractions that could impact your effectiveness and use of time. Possible causes and solutions outlined can serve as a basis for creating an effective plan for increasing your overall performance.

1. Fear of Mistakes

Fearing mistakes is the mental process of focusing on negative outcomes and is often a preoccupation with past mistakes.

Possible Causes:

- Want to avoid criticism
- Take criticism personally
- Want to be seen as efficient and competent

Possible Solutions:

- Practice focusing on past successes
- For every mistake that you think might happen, write down two positive possible outcomes for a completed task
- Focus on several possible future outcomes

2. Overreacting To Constructive Criticism

Overreacting to constructive criticism is the inappropriate overt or covert response to feedback and recommendations.

Possible Causes:

- Have a high comfort level with past methods
- Have high standards for work performance
- Think that your way is the correct way
- Don't see the benefit of doing things differently

Possible Solutions:

- Practice listening without evaluating comments from others
- Begin responding mentally with "that's interesting" or "that's a possibility" as a way of controlling immediate negative responses
- Communicate feelings with peers and supervisors

3. Prolong Events In Order To Gain Improved Results

Prolonging events in order to gain improved results is the process of doing and redoing, evaluating and re-evaluating, and changing to and changing back as a way of "testing" the best possible outcome.

Possible Causes:

- Want to ensure that success is always achieved
- Feel that if rushed, the results will not be satisfactory
- Hope situations will work out themselves

LIKELY TIME WASTERS

Possible Solutions:

- Set realistic schedule and timeline
- Follow the schedule
- Seek advice or assistance from others

4. Seeking The Best But Not Necessarily Workable Solutions

Always seeking the best solution may prohibit getting the task accomplished. Something better is always on the horizon.

Possible Causes:

- Want to do things right the first time
- Want personal approval for preciseness of work
- Fear criticism if a solution doesn't work

Possible Solutions:

- Establish required standards
- Determine the solution that meets or exceeds those standards
- Set a timeline for making a decision or completing a task

5. Waiting For Events To Happen

Although patience may be a virtue, being pro-active allows the decision-maker to be in better control of events within their scope of influence.

Possible Causes:

- Want to affect the here and now
- Fear rushing into something will show unpreparedness
- Need for high standards inhibits getting started

Possible Solutions:

- Plan alternative solutions
- Determine most likely scenarios
- Implement a plan that best meets those needs without jeopardizing other scenarios
